Innovative Computing Systems Adds San Francisco Sales Executive

SAN FRANCISCO – January 25, 2016 – Innovative Computing Systems, Inc., a leading provider of information technology services to law firms nationwide, announces the addition of Amy Kosey to the company's solutions sales team. Amy will serve as a sales executive, where she will work with clients and vendors to ensure the delivery of consistent and superior services to all clients.

Amy has worked in the legal vertical for almost 30 years. She has worked with such familiar vendors as LexisNexis (Business of Law Solutions), Juris, CompuLaw, ASK Legal (her own independent legal technology consulting company) and with a consulting firm and law firm where she performed high-quality work as a Network Administrator.

"She knows technology and legal," said Ted Glutz, Director of Sales and Marketing at Innovative Computing Systems. "With her long and varied experience in legal technology, she comes to us armed with the knowledge and skills that will make her invaluable to our company and our clients' firms. We all look forward to working with her," he finished.

Amy Kosey will be based out of Innovative Computing Systems' San Francisco office, keeping Northern California law firms on the forefront of legal technology.
