

What skills should technology professionals develop to ensure a successful future in legal?

Embrace Change

The skill all legal technology professionals should develop and fine-tune is adaptability. Almost anybody can pick up a manual or installation guide and learn how to do something. But what helps you stand out is the ability to adapt to the changes that are occurring. Understand the change instead of fight it. Take advantage of new features and introduce them into the workflow. Don't get stuck using version 1.0 when the issue has been solved in version 2.0.
